

A vibrant watercolor illustration of pomegranates and their seeds. The composition is dense with various shades of red, from deep crimson to bright, almost white highlights. Some pomegranates are whole, while others are cut open to reveal the juicy, seed-filled interior. The seeds are scattered throughout, some appearing as individual dots and others as small clusters. The background is a mix of white and light blue washes, with some darker blue and yellow accents that suggest a natural, artistic setting.
